A smaller mutiny has since occurred on the torpedo-boat destroyes Tejo. Naval officers say that their prestige is gone and that it would have been better to have sunk the Don Carlos than to have captulated to the mutineers.

COMMERCE ADDITION SOLD.

Probable Site of .. Mill for Weyerhaeusers.

After five years of negotiations A. A. Werley has at last become owner of Commerce Addition, the point of the island opposite the central portion of the city and comprising ninety acres of land. It has always been recognized as an ideal spot for a mammoth mill and in the boom days of 1891 it was sold to Jarvis Conklin Mortgage Trust Company for $80,000. After that company went into the hands of a receiver it became tied up through the many interests of various creditors getting involved in it. Then it was hard for the owners to come down from the exorbitant price which it once brought Although it has been a tedious job and men with less persistence and less interest in the town's welfare would have given it up long ago. Of late the property has been represented by the Manhattan Trust Company., of New York, though it was really owned in England and that made it all the harder to make any deal on it.

It is believed that the property will ultimately belong to the Weyerhaeuser Timber Company. There are several things which point to this surmise being correct. Mr. Werley is a close friend Hearing of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, of R. L. McCormick, the secretary of the company, and worked for him several years before he came to South Bend 16 years ago and Mr. Werely acknowledges that he has some hopes of selling that tract of that company. Mr. McCormack has been here of late

It is known that the Weyerhaeuser mill in Everett is not a success: it is a made-over mill and is not a money maker, It was thought the company was going to build a big Portuguese Sailors Threaten to mill at St. Johns on the Columbia but that scheme has been dragging very ominously. The company has immense tracts of fine timber tributary to South Bend and here is the place to saw it up. The supposed plan includes a bridge across the river which would make all the island available for

Whether the purchaser was made for Weyerhausers of whether they purchase it or not makes comparatively little difference in South Bend, The important thing is that it is now in the hands of a man who will do something with it. There is room enough for several ordinary mill sites and they are bound to be made available now,-South Bend Journal.

New Cabin To Be Built and Other Improvements Made,

Capt. A. W. Reed commenced last Sunday to make some improvements on the crack steamer of Willapa Harbon which will make her even more of the pride of these waters. The pilot house was raised about three feet to give the man at the wheel a chance to take a better view of his surroundings. Of 00000000000000000 course, the people who travel on the steamer want the pilot to have all the 00000000000000000 conveniences possible to guard against accidents, but they will be more interested in learning what else is to be done. A ladies' cabin is being built on the upper deck abaft of the captain's rooms and will be eighteen feet in length Captain Reed was not entirely decided in his plans when the Journal representative talked with him, but he had this move in mind for several months.

On the starboard side of the lower deck a cook's galley will be put in. and during the summer season when the boat is making two trips a day, the of the Columbia. crew will be able to take their meals aboard without carrying cold lunches. The work being done will not interfere with the regular trips of the boat. Jas-Darling has charge of the work .- South Bend Journal.
